MediClick Signs AnMed Health and East Alabama Medical Center

Hospitals Take Control of Supply Chain Management with MMIS

Raleigh, NC – March 19, 2008 – MediClick welcomes two new customers: AnMed Health in Anderson S.C., a 560-bed facility and East Alabama Medical Center, a 352-bed regional hospital in Opelika, Ala. Both hospitals are installing the company's MMIS, MediClick for the Supply Chain.

Bruce Zartman, Director of Materials Management at East Alabama Medical Center, cites MediClick's technology and flexibility as the deciding factor for his hospital.

"MediClick demonstrated a clear awareness of healthcare supply chain intricacies and have developed their application into something that will truly give us visibility into and control of our supply chain," said Zartman. "Additionally, it will provide a much better interface for our customers to communicate supply chain needs to Materials Management."

AnMed Health's Director of Materials Management, Carolyn Couch, believed she would never change from the legacy system she had used for over 20 years. But MediClick's technology won her over: "The MediClick solution was superior to any other we reviewed," she said.

MediClick President Mike Merwarth said the company's next technological step will be even more exciting. "The tools we've been developing will help hospitals take control of the healthcare supply chain in a way that's never been possible before," he said.
